Santa Fe is a city for all seasons, but summer is extra special. It's the perfect time for adventure seekers, art enthusiasts, foodies and fashionistas. From hiking the Sangre de Cristo Mountains to strolling the summer arts markets, a unique experience awaits.

The adventure begins the minute you arrive in this magical, one-of-a-kind locale. Surrounded by historic, adobe architecture, you'll feel like you've been transported to another world. From there, your visit will only get better.

Hear the music, see the art, taste the cuisine and enjoy the great outdoors. And for the truly adventurous among us, set your sights on Santa Fe's famous Margarita Trail. You'll love every delicious step along this fun-filled journey showcasing amazing margaritas and world-class eats from more than 30 of the city's most tempting establishments. You'll also get a taste of fresh, local chile, an all-too-delicious staple of Northern New Mexico cuisine. Yum!

While the food and drink scene is top notch, the Santa Fe art scene is legendary, and this summer will be no exception as "Santa Fe Celebrates Global Arts & Culture". Now through October, Cathedral Park in Santa Fe will host a magnificent exhibition of 92 reproductions of masterpieces from the Museo del Prado in Madrid. The exhibition will be making its U.S. debut and is only one experience of dozens in the yearlong celebration. All of this comes along with the many undeniable attractions that consistently draw visitors to The City Different year after year. World-class shopping, breathtaking vistas, countless outdoor adventures and soul-satisfying relaxation awaits in what will be an enjoyable, inspirational and unforgettable visit.

Experience all that we have to offer and you'll soon see why Santa Fe is affectionately and accurately called The City Different.
